

Congratulations on Your New House!

Moving into a new home is exciting and worth celebrating. But, no matter if it's your first home or your fourth, moving can also be stressful. You are anxious to start life in your new home, but there is a lot to be done before you feel ready to move from one address to the next. If you don't stay organized the process can be overwhelming. However, with some planning and organization your move-in can be hassle-free with minimal stress. We have compiled the ultimate move-in checklist for your new home. So let's get started. After all, those boxes won't unpack themselves.

Your Pre-Move Checklist

Starting is always the hardest part so here are a few essentials to do before you move into your new home.

Prepare

- Draw a layout to help visualize where everything will go.
- Before you begin packing, put all of your important documents and essential items in one designated area.
- Separate items that need to be easily accessible.
